Biography

Charlie is a member of the firm's energy and environmental & natural resources practice.

Prior to pursuing a legal career, Charlie worked for over a decade in the ski industry. During this time, Charlie oversaw risk management, permitting compliance and other high level operational and managerial tasks for both large and small operators on public and private lands.

This exposure to the legal needs of private industry operating on public land led Charlie to pursue a legal career. At Parsons Behle & Latimer, Charlie is passionate about providing high quality legal services to individual and business clients of all sizes as they navigate wide-ranging and complex legal issues.

Outside of his legal work Charlie is an avid skier, mountain biker and rafter.
