Biography

John focuses on representing local government clients, including Utah cities and a local police department in a variety of civil litigation matters. John was responsible for conducting a significant investigation into the operational and regulatory response of a local city to a municipal water supply issue.

John also represents individuals and businesses in his civil litigation practice. He has represented clients pursuing claims in a range of civil matters including: breach of contract; fraud and conversion; trust and probate disputes; real property disputes; judgment enforcement; and traffic accidents. John has experience representing a court appointed receiver in actions to recover voidable transfers arising from underlying securities fraud.

Before joining Parsons Behle & Latimer, John worked a 24-year career in law enforcement, serving as a police officer, detective and supervisor. John uses his experience conducting investigations to enhance his practice representing individuals, businesses and government clients.

John received his J.D. degree from the University of Utah, graduating with highest honors and earning election to The Order of the Coif. John earned his undergraduate degree, a B.S. in mechanical engineering, from Northwestern University.

In his free time, John enjoys canyoneering and snowboarding.
