Biography

Jenni enjoys the range of challenges related to practicing in litigation. And with years of experience in persuasive writing and speaking, Jenni is skilled at understanding, empathizing and assisting clients with the intricacies of litigation. Jenni's satisfaction in practicing law, and particularly litigation, comes from the interesting variety of client matters she undertakes. She strives to deeply understand each client's circumstance, and based on that understanding, create a unique legal strategy, effectively communicate that strategy and achieve superior legal results for her clients.

Jenni graduated magna cum laude from BYU law school in 2025 after several years of other professional pursuits, including piano instructor, English as a Second Language teacher and dental office manager. During law school, Jenni was a senior editor on the BYU Law Review and focused on projects related to Constitutional rights. With her fluency in Spanish, one such project took her to Buenos Aires, Argentina on an internship through the International Center for Law and Religion Studies.

In her spare time, Jenni enjoys homestead-style cooking, playing the piano, reading the classics, writing novels, hiking and playing tennis with her husband.
